Menlo Recall Election Ordered

Kincaid & Fitzpatrick, attorneys for the citizens of Menlo Park, sponsoring the recall of two members of the city council of that city, received a notice from the court of appeals yesterday granting the writ of mandate and commanding the respondents to forthwith cause a special election not less than 35 days nor more than 40 days from the order calling such election.

The opinion of the court will be received by the law firm today.

The recall petition was filed with the city council of Menlo Park some weeks ago. It failed to call the election, whereupon the matter was taken to the Appellate Court to compel the council to call the special election or to show cause, if any it had, why such an election should not be called.

The council, through its attorney, George Whitworth, filed a demurrer and same was overruled by the court. An answer was then filed. Yesterday the court gave its decision issuing the writ and demanding the council to call an election forthwith.

It is probable that the council will convene shortly and call the election.

Hearing Held In Suit for Property

The civil suit, entitled R. S. Chatham against J. J. Bullock, Mrs. Riley, the former wife of Chatham, intervening and made a plaintiff, was heard before Judge Dooling in the Superior court yesterday and submitted. The depositions of Attorney Savage and Attorney Thomas will be taken in San Francisco Monday afternoon, when the case will be submitted to the court for decision.

The suit grows out of the divorce case of Chatham against Chatham which was tried in 1925 when a settlement of the property rights was arrived at. Mrs. Chatham received $3,000 in cash and three parcels of land at Beresford. A fourth parcel was claimed by Bullock as a fee. Both Chatham and his former wife denied his claim and are now suing to get it back. It was deeded to him at the time of the divorce, but Mrs. Chatham declared on the stand that she believed it was to go to her husband and not to Bullock. However, after many transfers the title of the land, about seven acres, is now vested in the name of J. J. Buillock and is valued at about $25,000.

Grand Jury Favors Home to Care for Tuercular Girls

Recommending the establishment of a suitable place to care for tubercular girls, similar to the San Mateo County Preventorium, which now cares for boys with a leaning toward tuberculosis, the Grand Jury this week filed its report regarding the affairs of the county government.

The erection of a home for girls subject to tuberculosis was only one of a number of recommendations made in regard to caring for those afflicted in various ways. Others were for the enlargement of the county relief home by completing an attic which at present is not used; the erection of a new detention home near the courthouse.

The consolidation of the coastside school districts into one large district was also recommended. A study was recommended of the county government, which the report characterized as obsolete.

The county was advised to study plans for an airport to be owned and operated by the county. A bill introduced into the state legislature by Assemblyman Parkman and which calls for the creation of the office of a second superior judge in this county, was declared by the Grand Jury to be unnecessary, as it was stated, that Judge Buck is at present able to handle all the business which now comes to the Superior Court.

Salary increases were recommend ed for deputies in the offices of the county treasurer, the sheriff, the county librarian, the auditor and district attorney.

Extra deputies were recommended for the offices of the district attorney, the treasurer, the assessor, the auditor and the sheriff. It was recommended that a night patrol of the highways be maintained by the latter office and that sufficient deputies be appointed to maintain this service.

The members of the Grand Jury were:

Geo. E. Dunn, Halfmoon Bay, foreman; Ethel B. Shellinger, Lomita Park, secretary; C. L. Jordan, Belmont; Elizabeth Hogan, Redwood City; Henry Witte, Redwood City; Grace A. Ely, San Bruno; Mary A. Bryan, San Carlos; Elizabeth Coffinberry, South San Francisco; Louise E. McLellan, San Mateo; Vivtor E. Holmes, Burlingame; C. R. Augustin, Daly City; Catherine A. Koen, San Bruno; Mary A. Westkamper, Daly City; Ella H. Pipkin, Redwood City; A. A. Rochex, San Mateo.

PLEA MADE FOR FUNDS OF SCOUTS

Work of Troops Seen At County Meetings Friday Night

Parents and friends were greeted in Burlingame Friday night, Feb. 8, by more than 800 Boy Scouts of San Mateo county, including the troops of San Carlos, Redwood City and Menlo Park, at a monster rally, which ushered in the observance of the 19th anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scout movement in America. The observance is to continue all next week with the big county-wide drive for the Boy Scout budget in 1929.

The drive is to secure $10,500 with which to continue and extend the work of the organization in the county for the coming year. The Boy Scouts make no distinctions of race, creed or color and the organization is not of military character, it was emphasized by speakers, asking support of the coming campaign, which is to open next Monday.

The County Scout band led by Eugene C. Brose of Burlingame and numbering 75 pieces, had a prominet part in the Friday night program which also included an Indian pageant in which more than 400 boys took part. There were demonstrations of fire making, signalling, first aid and other activities, following a colorful review in which the 25 troops of the county paraded with their standards before Edward A. Barrer, chief field executive.

Among the speakers were Thomas T. Wiseman, San Mateo chairman of the county drive; Scout Alfred Clark of Burlingame and Charles J. Eldridge, chairman of the county executive council

Stressing the need for additional Scout troops in the county and for enlargement of the summer camp, near Pescadero, Chairman Wiseman also called on San Mateo county men and women to support the drive in the name of "Boyhood Preferred." He pointed out that President Coolidge and leaders in all walks of life favor the growth of this great character building organization for boys.

He said in part: "Here in San Mateo county where we have the finest type of boyhood on earth, we must pledge our cash, or the Boy Scout movement, so vital and so valuable to the greater future of our country, will fall behind the high mark we have already established. We want to build character in the boyhood of San Mateo county. We want to make it into the type of manhood that every mother hopes for her own son.

"Every step in the Boy Scout program is toward better character, sounder bodies, preparedness and alertness of mind. The organization is not military in any sense. The uniform and troop arrangement are merely for disciple in handling the group. There are no distinctions of race, color, creed or religion. We need the Boy Scout training for our boys. By the success of this campaign we will provide it, and we will increase its great influence for good in San Mateo county."

SCHOOL TO TAKE PART IN CONTEST

Funds Sought Here To Send Three To New York

The Exchange Club and the Native Sons are leading the local organizations in contributions to the Sequoia Times convention fund, it has been learned from the First National Bank and the Bank of Italy, where donations are being sent. If enough money is raised within the next week, representatives of the high school paper will go East to New York City, where they will enter the Sequoia Times in a national contest at Columbia University.

For the benefit of the fund, the Redwood City Woman's Club is lending the clubhouse for a bridge-tea, which will be given next Friday by a group of townswomen who are sponsoring the high school in the campaign. Because of conflicting engagements, the party will be held Friday instead of Wednesday, as previously announced.

"The present short month makes it necessary that checks be sent to the banks within the next week, for that leaves less than a week for us to register at New York by mail and to get everything ready for our departure," Miss Eunice Schmidt, adviser of the Times, announces. "Many of the friends of the high school who have sgnified their intention to give to the fund do not realize the short time, I believe."

A Chicago hardware firm has informed the high school of the fact that a forthcoming advertising bulletin for the company will featrue Sequoia. In addition to this, Leonard & Holt, realtors, have taken pictures of the school this week to use in advertising their property.

"Business men realize the value of the school to the community, because parents seek homes where their children will get good educations," school officials assert. "This present use of the school in companies' advertising proves this point. It can readily be seen how much more valuable national advertisng, such as the Times would furnish in the East, will be to the section. It will put Redwood City on the national map."

H. W. Schaberg, inheritance tax appraiser, yesterday filed his inventory and appraisment of the estate of Minnie C. Knust, deceased. The value of the estate was placed at $131,419.39. It consists of real estate, personal property, bonds and cash in bank.

The deceased resided during her life time at Atherton. She was a sister of John W. Classen, also of Atherton. He inherits the entire estate by the terms of the will left by the deceased.

Asa Hull Renamed District Chairman

At a metting of the Pulgas Mosquito Abatement District held on Wednesday last at the Lambert & Walter building, Asa Hull was reelected chairman and Carl Mabie, secretary. The other members of the board present were M. J. McKeon, D. E. O'Keefe, and Mr. Barrett. The members plan a big campaign during the spring. Jos. Dickey, the superintendent, plans to have the marsh in the vicinity of the Belle Haven Land Company thoroughly oiled. The dredging going on there necessitates this. Dickey reported that a district was being formed across the bay that would have a good effect here as the mosquitoes n summer were driven to this side of the bay by the east winds. The new district would prevent this so that there will be very few of the pesky torments here during the coming summer.

Boy Injured When Hit by Automobile

Running away from a dog which attacked him as he was returning home from the Washington school, John Pelici, 11 years old, ran into the path of a car driven by Eugene Cerqui, clerk of the Superior Court of this county. Cerqui was unable to avoid hitting the boy and the lad was severely injured by the accident.

The boy was taken to the Redwood City hospital, where it was found hat he had suffered a broken leg and shoulder and a possible fracture of he skull. His condtion at last reports was still critical, although attendants held hopes for his recovery.

The accident was investigated by Sargeant Stanley Woods of the Redwood City police, who questioned Cerqui and F. M. Peregrini, who saw the accident happen. Cerqui was absolved of blame in the matter and was not held by the police.

Exchange Club Hears Of Tin Reclamation

Tracing the parallel in the development of civilization and the use of tin, Emil Kardos, head of the Metal Thermite Co. of South San Francisco, and state treasurer of the California Affiliated Exchange Clubs, this week spoke before the members of the Redwood City Exchange Club on the subject of tin. Kardos related the history of tin from the earliest times and told of the industrial uses of the metal today. At the plant in South San Francisco tin is recovered from the scraps left after the making of tin cans. It is one of four such plants in the United States, three of which were started by the speaker. Each member of the club present was given a small ingot of tin as a sovenier.

Wilis Frost gave the weekly historical talk which is a feature of the club meetings. His subject was the life of Thomas A. Edison, who celebrated his 82nd birthday Monday. The chairman of the meeting was J. J. Shields, who gave a short talk on the life of Abraham

130's Champions

Three out of the last four years of 130-pound basketball have resulted in championship teams, the thirties of '29 winning their championship by defeating the San Mateo Bearcats Friday night by a score of 16-15.

This year's team has set a record that will be hard to beat, not losing a game in all the league games played, and will compete presently in the competition for North Coast Section championship. Probably the Purple and White will play Santa Cruz there, and if a victory is the result, the following game, which will be the championship game of the N. C. S. will be played on the Sequoia court.

While the unlimiteds have "not panned out" as well as was expected of them, they have managed to put up good exhibitions of scrap, if not astounding basketball skill, a number of times. The basketball season is just about over for this year, and if the thirties play for the N. C. S., that will be the last game to be on the home court.

"Windmills of Holland," an operetta to be given by Otis M. Carrington, and his choral classes, will be presented free of charge to the public some time in April. This operetta was presented to the public some years ago in the old Sequoia theatre and was a success at the time, consequently Mr. Carrington holds very optimistic views fo the success for the forthcoming production.

With the comedy the keynote, the senior play, 'Rivals" by Richard Brinsley Sheridan will be presented to the public March 9 in the high school auditorium. This is the first time in a number of years that any of the old-time plays has been put on at Sequoia, and Mis Elizabeth Chase, coach of the play, thinks that the choice of the play speaks well for the senior class.

A program in commeroration of Abraham Lincoln was presented by the students of the Sequoia debating society at the assembly held on Lincoln's birthday. Speeches, a tableau, and some choril selections, together with a reading, comprised the program.

ODD FELLOWS HAVE CARPET BALL GAME

After a brief business meeting of the Odd Fellows Wednesday, there were there games of carpet ball played, which created a great deal of excitement among the participants and rooters. Six teams competed for honors. During the game they were entertained by several musical numbers and songs, accompanied by Earl Rush, with his guitar; Dick Svhius and the old fiddle and several pros. and novices with the harmonica. The piano was also played. After the game, "beaucoup" refreshments wereserved by a committee that knows how.

The reason the teams are interested in the final score of the season is that each team deposits 60c for each game and at the end of the season the team counting the highest number of scores will receive 50 per cent of the kitty and the team couhting or winning the most games will receive the other fifty per cent of the kitty in addition to the beautiful silver cup.

Paricipants and results of the games are:

The San Mateo Woodmar 39; vs San Mateo Sons of St. George, 49. Burlingame Odd Fellows, 61 vs San Mateo Odd Fellows, 24. (Redwood City Odd Fellows, 50, vs Mountain View Odd Fellows, 21.

PHONE MAN PROMOTED

J. D. Worthington Transferred To City

J. D. Worthington, for many years manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company here, leaves on February 16th to assume a responsible postion in the San Francisco headquarters of that company, according to an announcement made yesterday by C. H. Moore, district manager.

Worthington was manager of the exchange here and also at Palo Alto and Mountain View until about a year ago the district was divided and L. C. Brown was put in charge of this territory. Worthington continued in charge at that time of the Palo Alto and Mountain View districts.

In his contacts with the people of this district during his connection with the local telephone office, Worthington became well-known and liked. His contacts with the public were always courteous and pleasant. His many friends here, while regretting his loss to this district are greatly pleased by the news of his advancement and by the fact that although his work will take him to the city, he will maintain his home in Palo Alto.

Worthington first entered the service of the telephone company on February 1, 1917, when he accepted a position in the San Francisco offices. During the latter part of that year he became manager of the Hollister exchange. On March 16, 1923, he relinquished that position to assume the manegership of Palo Alto. Since that time he has watched the Palo Alto exchange grow from 3,325 telephones to over 6,300.

Worthington is succeeded by Hugh L. Monahan, who has been relieved of the mangership of the San Luis Obispo exchange, to assume his new responsibilities. Monahan brings with him a broad background of telephone experience. He entered the services of the telephone company during 1922 when he accepted a position in the division offices of the company at Sacramento. Since that time he has served in varous capacities at Stockton and Fresno, until June 1927, when he was appointed manager of the San Luis Obispo exchange.

In announcing Worthington's successor Moore added, "Monahan comes well equipped to handle the numerous phases of the telephone business. His previous experience will prove valuable in caring for the many conditions co-incident with the rapid growth which Palo Alto is now experiencing."

Western Pacific Plans Line Into Great North West

Another proposed enlargement of the Western Pacific system was announced this week by officials of that company. This is the construction of a line through northern California to meet with the Great Northern in Oregon. This is the third big project announced this year by that company and ties in with their plan of constructing a lined from Niles to Bakersfield through the San Joaquin valley, and their other proposal of building a line from San Francisco to this city to be connected with the transcontinental line at Niles. Both of these plans are now before the inter-state commerce commission.

Acting concurrently and in cooperation, the Great Northern Railway Company and the Western Pacific Railroad Company yesterday filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D. C. applications for certificates of public convenience and necessity, to enable them to provide a railroad by the construction of new lines, or partly by use of other lines, between Klamath Falls, the southermost terminus of the Great Northern in Oregon, and the main line of the Western Pacific at Paxton or Keddie, Plumas county, California.

According to the application filed by the Great Northern Railway that company proposes to construct and operate an extension of its existing line from Klamath Falls southerly to a point at or near Lookout, Modoc county, California. In an application, filed simultaneously by the Western Pacific, it is propsed by the Western Pacific to provide a line of railroad extending from Paxton or Keddie on its main line northerly via Westwood to meet and connect with the Great Northern's southerly extension.

The distance to be covered in closing the gap between the existing lines of the Great Northern and the Western Pacific is approximately 200 miles and the two companies are prepared to begin construction as soon as the necessary authorization is obtained from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The closing of this gap will connect the vast system of the Great Northern Railway with the lines of the Western Pacific, thereby creating and establishing a new competitive route between points on the Western Pacific and its connection and points on the Great Northern and its connections. With this link between the two railroad systems is completed and in operation there wil follow a proper adjustment of rates and through routes will be established to and from the east and also to and from points in the west insofar as may be practicable and necessary to serve the shipping and traveling public.

Participation by the Western Pacific in this new and vital railroad project is in furtherance of its aim and objects which are, in accordance with its declraed policy, to provide new and improved railroad transportation facilities where they are lacking or inadequate, to upbuild the regions which it serves, to stimulate the growth of new territory, to provide a net-work of feeder lines in California and to increase its traffic to and from the State of California. The new project goes even further in that it will provide a new outlet for important sections of the west and a new competing route with advantages of far reaching importance not only to states on the Pacific coast, but to the entire west.

MAIN STREET STORE SCENE OF BURNING

Redwood Firemen Battle Flames To Save Buildings

A fire shortly after noon Tuesday damaged the rear portion of the store on Main street, occupied by the Hadad Sales Co., and for a time threatened the entire row of frame buildings adjoining the burning one. The fire department reponded to a call from box 13, and found the building a mass of flames inside, and smoke so dense that it was impossible to see inside of the structure.

After the flames had been subdued by the firemen and entrance gained to the interior, it was found that the damage had been done chiefly to the interior woodwork of the building, and that most of the smoke had come from burning trash which had been piled in the rear of the store. The fire is stated by firemen to have originated from hot ashes which were found in a partially burned pasteboard box near the pile of rubbish.

Roof Fire Damages Highway Home Here

A fire, which is thought to have originated from sparks from a chimney, yesterday afternoon called the fire department to the home of A. L. Lesseman on the highway, near Brewster street. The fire was extinguished by the firemen before any serious damage was done to the house.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855½ Wolff St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Help Kidneys By Drinking More Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

When New York's Streets Ran Red

To understand a phenomenon in the history of a nation, even our own nation, it frequently is necessary that first we should consider the phenomena not only of preceding circumstances and conditions, but also the phenomena of existing popular sentiments, popular prejudices, popular passions.

Let us take New York city at the time of outbreaking of the great war between the North and the South. Except for a negligible minority of secret Southern sympathizers among office-holders and politicians about Albany, the people of the state of New York, outside the state's metropolis, were sincerely determined that the Union should be preserved. But the city was of a different temper. Large commercial interests there favored the Confederate cause. To most of those of the present generation it will seem almost inconceivable that in January, 1861, the mayor, Fernando Wood, proposed to the Common Council that Manhattan Island, Long Island, Staten Island should secede from the commonwealth and set up a free and independent city with a separate government of its own, to be known as Tri-Insula. What sounds still more incredible, the council approved the plan and many of the most influential citizens heartily applauded their action. In April, though, when public indignation throughout the North had been inflamed by the attack on Fort Sumter, a majority of the Democrats joined with the Republicans in discarding the proposal and in whole-souled support of President Lincoln and his policies. There remained, however, an active group of "Copperheads" as loyal Unionists in derision called such of their fellow-Northerners as privately favored the interests of the South.

Bearing in mind that this substratum of anti-Union feeling continued to exist and in some quarters to flourish, it is possible to realize the underlying causes for the great draft riot in 1863. There was this background of clandestine friendship for the secession movement; on top of this came a tremendous wave of resentment against the provisions of the draft act which congress at Washington had enacted. The trouble with the draft act was that it exempted from its operations any man chose for military service who would pay $300 for a substitute in his stead. Accordingly, a well-to-do person might at small expense save himself from the discomforts and the dangers of a soldier's lot. There was complaint that this rule worked to the benefit of the rich and against the poor. When, in New York city, efforts were made to put in effect the operations of the law, there broke out a riot which for ferocity, for loss of life and for duration, is unparalleled in the history of this country. It occurred in the midst of the Civil war, when great battles were being fought and, by subsequent contrast with the background of fraternal strife of which it was a part, became dwarfed in the popular imagination. That is why among the present-day generation there are so few even among the well-informed, to whom the draft riot is anything more than a name and a legend.

The uprising started on the 13th of July. It continued for nearly five days. More than fifty buildings were burned; hundreds of others were damaged and looted. The fury of the mob especially was directed against negroes, since the black race was a main bone of contention between the warring sections in the nation. Negroes were lynched indiscriminately, were hanged to lamp-posts, stoned to death, kicked to death. The police fought gallantly to restore order, but being overwhelmed by numbers, became powerless. Not until several regiments of troops had been rushed to the city to cope with the rioters and not until fully 500 of the latter had been killed by the guns of the soldiers did the bloody carnival end.

That distinguished writer and orator, Anna Elizabeth Dickinson, furnished us with a vivid picture of the draft riot. She was not so much concerned with furnishing statistics on the deaths or presenting individual narratives as with painting upon a larger canvas a panorama of the bloody event as a whole. From her story it is possible to get a vision of the horror as seen through the eyes of a brilliant and devoted woman.

THERE appears to have been little doubt that Miss Dickinson was in New York during the draft riot. Her account, which is here given, probably was based in part upon statements made to her by other eye-witnesses. In any event, its substantial features as narrated by her were accepted, although some details of it never were proved. Excusing the fact that one was an outspoken partisan of the Union cause, and naturally would be inclined to put the worst possible face upon anything savoring of disloyalty to the Union, it may safely be assumed that here in her story, as incorporated into an historical novel written by her in 1868, we have a reasonably accurate picture of the most dreadful popular outbreak in the history of the United States.

"On the morning of Monday, the 13th of July (so she writes), began this outbreak, unparalleled in atrocities by anything in American history, and equaled only by the horrors of the worst days of the French Revolution. Gangs of men and boys composed of railroad employees, workers in machine shops, and a vast crowd of those who lived by preying upon others—thieves, professional ruffians—the scum of the city—jail-birds, or those who were running with swift feet to enter the prison doors, began to gather on the corners and in streets and alleys where they lived; from thence issuing forth they visited the great establishments on the line of their advance, commanding their instant close and the companionship of the workmen—many of them peaceful and orderly men—on pain of the destruction of one and a murderous assault upon the other, did not their orders meet with instant compliance.

Quenching a Thirst for Ruin.

A body of these, five or six hundred strong, gathered about one of the enrolling offices in the upper part of the city, where the draft was quietly proceeding, and opened the assault upon it by a shower of clubs, bricks, and paving stones torn from the streets, following it up by a furious rush into the office. Lists, records, books, the drafting wheel, every article of furniture or work in the room was rent in pieces and strewn about the floor or flung into the streets; while the law offices, the newspaper reporters, who are expected to be everywhere—and a few peaceable spectators, were compelled to make a hasty retreat through an opportune rear exit, accelerated by the curses and blows of the assailants. . . .

"And then, finding every portable article destroyed—their thirst for ruin growing by the little drink it had had—and believing, or rather hoping, that the officers had taken refuge in the upper rooms, they set fire to the house and stood watching the slow and steady lift of the flames, filling the air with demoniac shrieks and yells while they waited for their prey to escape from some door or window, from the merciless fire to their merciless hands. One of these, who was on the other side of the street, courageously stepped forward and telling them that they had utterly demolished all they came to seek, informed them that helpless women and little children were in the house, and besought them to extinguish the flames and leave the premises; to disperse, or at least to seek some other scene.

"By his dress recognizing in him a government official, so far from hearing or heeding his humane appeal, they set upon him with sticks and clubs and beat him till his eyes were blind with blood and he—bruised and mangled—succeeded in escaping to the handful of police who stood helpless before this howling crew, now increased to thousands. With difficulty and pain the inoffensive tenants escaped from the rapidly spreading fire which, having devoured the house originally lighted, swept across the neighboring buildings till the whole block stood a mass of burning flames. . . .

"The work thus begun continued—gathering force and fury as the day wore on. Police stations, enrolling offices, rooms or buildings used in any way by government authority, or obnoxious as representing the dignity of law, were gutted, destroyed, then left to the mercy of the flames. Newspaper offices, whose issues had been a fire in the rear of the nation's armies by extenuating and defending treason, and through violent and incendiary appeals stirring up 'lewd fellows of the baser sort' to this very carnival of ruin and blood, were cheered as the crowd went by. Those that had been faithful to loyalty and law were hooted, stoned, and even stormed by the army of miscreants who were only driven off by the gallant and determined charge of the police, and in one place by the equally gallant, and certainly unique defense, which came from turning the boiling water from the engines upon the howling wretches who, unprepared for any such warm reception as this, beat a precipitate and general retreat.

"Before night fell it was no longer one vast crowd collected in a single section, but great numbers of gatherings scattered over the whole length and breadth of the city—some of them engaged in actual work of demolition and ruin; others with clubs and weapons in their hands prowling around apparently with no definite atrocity to perpetrate but ready for any iniquity that might offer—and, by way of pastime, chasing every stray police officer or solitary soldier, or inoffensive negro who crossed the line of their vision; these three objects—the badge of a defender of the law—the uniform of the Union army—the skin of a helpless and outraged race—acted upon these madmen as water acts upon a rabid dog.

Fiends Rejoice at Orphans' Expense.

"Late in the afternoon a crowd which could have numbered not less than ten thousand, the majority of whom were ragged, frowsy, drunken women, gathered about the Orphan Asylum for Colored Children—a large and beautiful building, and one of the most admirable and noble charities of the city. When it became evident from the menacing cries and groans of the multitude that danger, if not destruction, was meditated to the harmless and inoffensive inmates, a flag of truce appeared, and an appeal was made in their behalf by the principal to every sentiment of humanity which these beings might possess—a vain appeal! Whatever human feeling had, if ever, filled these souls, was utterly drowned and washed away in the tide of rapine and blood in which they had been steeping themselves. The few officers who stood guard over the doors and manfully faced these demoniac legions, were beaten down and flung to one side, helpless and stunned, whilst the vast crowd rushed in. All the articles upon which they could seize—beds, bedding, carpets, furniture—the very garments of the fleeing inmates, some of them torn from their persons as they sped by—were carried into the streets and hurried off by the women and children who stood ready to receive the goods which their husband, sons and fathers flung to their care. The little ones, many of them, assailed and beaten; all—orphans and caretakers—exposed to every indignity and every danger, driven on to the street—the building was fired. . . .

"The house was fired in a thousand places, and in less than two hours the walls crashed in—a mass of smoking, blackened ruins; whilst the children wandered through the streets, a prey to beings who were wild beasts in everything save the superior ingenuity of man to agonize and torture his victims.

"Frightful as the day had been, the night was yet more hideous; since to the horrors which were seen was added the greater horror of deeds which might be committed in the darkness, or, if they were seen, it was by the lurid glare of burning buildings—the red flames of which, flung upon the stained and brutal faces, the torn and tattered garments, of men and women who danced and howled around the scene of ruin they had caused—made the whole aspect of affairs seem more like a gathering of fiends rejoicing in Pandemonium than aught with which creatures of flesh and blood had to do. . . .

The Governor Lends a Voice.

"The next morning's sun rose on a city which was ruled by a reign of terror. Had the police possessed the heads of Hydra and the arms of Briareus, and had these heads all seen, these arms all fought, they would have been powerless against the multitude of opposers. Outbreaks were made, crowds gathered, houses burned, streets barricaded, fights enacted in a score of places at once. Where the officers appeared they were irretrievably beaten and overcome; their stand, were it ever so short, but inflaming the passions of the mob to fresh deeds of violence. Stores were closed; the business portions of the city deserted; the large works and factories emptied of men who had been sent home by their employers or were swept into the ranks of the marauding bands. The city cars, omnibuses, hacks, were unable to run, and remained under shelter. Every telegraph wire was cut, the posts torn up, the officers driven from their offices. The mayor, seeing that civil power was helpless to stem this tide, desired to call the military to his aid and place the city under martial law, but was opposed by the governor—a governor who but a few days before had pronounced the war a failure; and not only predicted but encouraged this mob rule which was now crushing everything beneath its heavy and ensanguined feet.

This man, through almost two days of these awful scenes remained at a quiet seaside retreat but a few miles from the city. Coming to it on the afternoon of the second day—instead of ordering cannon planted in the streets, giving these creatures opportunity to retire to their homes and, in event of refusal, blowing them there by powder and ball—he first went to the point where was collected the chiefest mob and proceeded to address them. Before him stood incendiaries, thieves and murderers, who even then were seeking dwelling houses and butchering powerless and inoffensive beings. These wretches he apostrophized as "My friends," repeating the title again and again in the course of his harangue, assuring them that he was there as a proof of his friendship, which he had demonstrated by 'sending his adjutant general to Washington to have the draft stopped'; begging them to 'wait for his return'; 'to separate now as good citizens,' with the promise that they 'might assemble again whenever they wished to do so,' 'meanwhile he would 'take care of their rights' This model speech was incessantly interrupted by tremendous cheering and frantic demonstrations of delight—one great fellow almost crushing the governor in his enthusiastic embrace. . . .

"His allies in newspaper offices attempted to throw the blame upon the loyal press and portion of the community. This was but a repetition of the cry raised by traitors in arms that the government, struggling for life in their deadly hold, was responsible for the war: 'If thou wouldst but consent to be murdered peaceably there could be no strife.'"

"These editors outraged common sense, truth and decency by speaking of the riots as an 'uprising of the people to defend their liberties—an opposition on the part of the workingmen to an unjust and oppressive law enacted in favor of the men of wealth and standing.' As though the people of the great metropolis were incendiaries, robbers and assassins; as though the poor were to demonstrate their indignation against the rich by hunting and stoning defenseless women and children; torturing and murdering men whose only offense was the color God gave them, or men wearing the self-same uniform as that which they declared was to be thrust upon them at the behest of the rich and the great.

"By far the most infamous part of these cruelties was that which wreaked every species of torture and lingering death upon the colored people of the city—men, women, and children, old and young, strong and feeble alike. Hundreds of them fell victims to the prejudice fostered by public opinion, incorporated in our statute books, sanctioned by our laws, which here and thus found legitimate outgrowth and action."

World's Biggest Shark

Towed 11 miles out to sea by a shark he had foul-hooked from his fishing launch, a man eventually managed to capture the fish with a harpoon, and land it at Whangaroa, New Zealand. It proved to be a world's record thresher shark, weighing 832 pounds. It was 6 feet 1 inch in girth and over 16 feet long. The previous record shark was caught by a resident of Hamilton, New Zealand, his capture weighing 697 pounds.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK

THE INTERNATIONAL HABIT

HUMANITY'S ever-present desire to improve upon nature is the secret of civilization's progress. In consequence, an incalculable distance separates the caveman from his present-day brother. And while in many thousands of instances nature has been decidedly improved upon, there are just as many more where the attempt has not been nearly so successful.

Take, for example, the question of drink. There is absolutely no substitute for water, either in quality or effectiveness, for the quenching of thirst. Yet man possibly never was nor never will be satisfied with "nature's own." The vast soft-drink industry is the most modern expression of this fact, and the equally vast, indeed more vast, habit of coffee and tea drinking, exhibits this tendency in man from the early times.

The universal custom of indulging in coffee and tea, while giving it undeniably the stamp of approval does not give either the coffee bean or the tea leaf an unimpeachable standing with nature and health. As a matter of fact, the opposite situation is more likely to be true than otherwise.

It were folly to state that to the vast majority of coffee drinkers the habit does any real damage. To most people, coffee in reasonable moderation acts merely as a mild stimulant through its slight caffeine content. And that is the end of it.

Nevertheless there is a minority—large in the aggregate—to whom the habitual use of coffee in any quantity is measurably harmful. And then again there is a very much smaller number of persons who should not drink it at all.

"Handled with care" coffee has its place in the daily menu for the majority, but any untoward symptoms such as nervousness, sleeplessness dyspepsia, biliousness, lack of appetite, call for a quick cut on this habit and probably its entire elimination.

And what has been said concerning coffee applies in a lesser degree to tea. Tannin to a very limited amount is in every cupful of properly brewed tea and is present in larger quantities in the boiled or overdone product. And tannin is a poison.

It is just possible that coffee or tea may be your one and only besetting sin against the possibility of enjoying that supreme sense of health which is your due. So face the coffee and tea problem squarely if it happens to be one with you. It will even pay you to be heroic in this matter.

THE STILL SMALL VOICE

MUCH has been written on the subject of a certain "still, small voice." And doubtless much of it is true. But this voice is not the only one that is often disregarded by many people. Indeed there are countless numbers who are scrupulous regarding the dictates of their conscience who become absolutely ruthless when the "still voice" of fatigue is concerned.

The great difficulty with the average person lies in his unwillingness to believe that practically all of him is strictly animal matter that must be handled in animal fashion if satisfactory results to his entirety are to follow.

The so-called dumb beasts, not being controlled by a superior brain, instinctively surrender to the laws of their nature. On the other hand man, the dominant being, frowns upon such subservience and drives on—sometimes to a breakdown, other times to a serious illness and not infrequently to death itself.

Fatigue is the warning signal. But with a supreme disregard, fatigue is fought until the petty things of man's petty world are concluded to his liking. Then and then only will he rest.

It would be well for everyone to realize that the really first consideration in life is to live; and that anything that definitely interferes with this process needs to be eliminated or decidedly curtailed.

While primarily the night was made for sleep (it is frequently hard to convince some people on this point) rest should have its part in the daytime schedule if fatigue makes the suggestion.

It is not of course possible to stimulate the animals in their strict adherence to the suggestions of fatigue. But it is possible to relax, and even to snatch a fifteen-minute sleep at noon time or mid-afternoon if the still small voice tells you to do so.

Therefore, for your health's sake don't drive too hard. Nonstop flights are fashionable with airplanes. But nonstop flights of the body are decidedly incompatible with healthy, long life. Hearken to its warnings.

Childish Intelligence

The intelligence quotient, or "I. Q.," of a child is determined by multiplying its mental age by 100 and dividing by the actual age. Thus the intelligence quotient of a normal child is 100. A child with an "I. Q." below 80 is rated as subnormal, while one with an "I. Q." above 120 is rated as gifted. About five children in 100 will be found to be 20 below normal and about five 20 above normal.

Greeks Got Alphabet From the Phoenicians

The Phoenicians are generally believed to have produced the first alphabet and from their group of sound symbols have grown all of the alphabets in existence today. The Greeks, it is known, composed their alphabet from the Phoenician as a result of their trade with the first sailors. The Romans took their alphabet from the Greek and the English alphabet comes directly from the Latin.

Only minor changes have come down in the English alphabet from that of the Romans. The English added the letter "j" for which "i" was used in the Latin and added "w" to the Latin "uv."

Probably the best explanation of the Phoenician alphabet's origin lies in the roving disposition of that people. Stopping at various ports along the Mediterranean they adopted certain characters of the cuneiform languages of all the countries and adapted them to their own usage.—Detroit News.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

The Final Bang

IN ORDER that the point of this story may be made clear, a word or two of preliminary explanation is required. Arthur Hopkins, one of the most successful of the younger group of theatrical producers, is a squarely built little man, not more than five feet six inches in height and with rather an emphatic way of speaking. It is characteristic of him that once he has made up his mind to a thing, he acts upon his decision with dispatch; nor, when he expresses himself, is there ever any doubt as to his exact meaning.

A season or so back, he put on rather an expensive play for a tryout before bringing it into New York. The production did not seem to go very well on the road. Nevertheless, the members of the cast, with the proverbial optimism of actor-folk, were hopeful that business might pick up and that, once they reached the big town, the piece might have a successful run.

But back in the home office Hopkins took a different view of the prospects. He ran through the figures of the box office reports, as sent in by the road manager, and immediately wired the latter to cancel all further bookings, pay the members of the company the required two weeks' salary, and ship the scenery and the properties back to the storehouse. Considerably disappointed at this outcome, the troupers returned to the city to look for new engagements. Naturally, Hopkins' action in so abruptly withdrawing the production became the subject of common gossip in the theatrical district.

A few days later, Wilton Lackaye was in the Lambs' club. An aspiring dramatist approached him.

"Say, Lackaye," he began, "maybe you can help me out. My latest comedy has just gone into rehearsals. It looks pretty good, too—everybody seems to like it; but we're shy a good gag line for the last act. You know how it helps, sometimes, if you bring the final curtain down with a wallop. I've racked my brain but I can't think of anything. I'm hoping maybe you can help me. If you've got time, I'll tell you briefly what the concluding scene is like and perhaps that'll give you an inspiration."

"I don't think you need to do all that," said Lackaye, softly. 'If I get you, what you want is something short and snappy to close a new show with?'

"That's it."

"All right," said Lackaye, "here it is in two words: 'Arthur Hopkins'!"

The Purification of Johnson Sides

JOHNSON SIDES, official peacemaker of the Piutes in Nevada, one cold January night got lost in a snowstorm and was induced by a cowboy who found him to take a long swig out of a whisky bottle. This was Johnson's first offense and it tipped him over completely in a delirium he walked into a burial place and staggered through the musty portals of an ancient and abandoned tomb. There he lay down to sleep it off. The chilly temperature sobered him up. He returned to Carson the next morning penitent and terrified at having broken the law.

The legislature happened to be in session. A humorously inclined member got hold of the Indian, heard his story, and drew up a bill as follows:

"SENATE BILL 6521

"Section 1—Be it enacted that the drink taken by Johnson Sides in the Carson City graveyard Monday night, January 3rd, be hereby declared null and void.

"Section II—This act shall go into effect immediately upon its passage and approval by the governor."

With much pomp and panoply and with great wads of red sealing wax and a mass of red ribbon affixed to the document, this hoax was solemnly passed by the senate without a dissenting vote, then was taken to the assembly and there passed unanimously, and after the governor had signed it the precious paper was bestowed upon Johnson with an elaborate speech. He took the document to the outskirts of the town where his tribe was encamped, translated it and announced that the White Father had called the big souse off.

The next morning 36 drunken Piutes were gathered up out of the cemetery by the local constabulary.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

IT'S ALL TRUE

RADIO does bring the city "up close." It does mean more to farm families than to anyone else.

BUT you've got to have a good radio. Radio that reaches out. Radio that sounds natural. Radio that's always ready when you are. The best evidence that Atwater Kent Radio is good radio—that it really does the job as everybody wants it done—is the fact that it is and has been for a long time the best seller in both the city and the country. After listening, after comparing prices, most people want it—because they find it's the kind they want.

Homing Pigeon Still Factor in Warfare

Judging from a remark of Capt. John K. Shawvan, the army carrier pigeon has a war advantage over radio, and so, despite modern scientific communication developments, is still doing business at the old stand.

"When an army takes the field against the enemy, quite naturally the greatest possible effort is made by that enemy to destroy communications," Captain Shawvan said. "In the heat of battle telephone lines become destroyed, radio and visual often fail. Concentrated artillery and machine gun fire make it humanly impossible for runners to get through with their messages. It is in this most intense stage of combat and at this vital time that the homing pigeon comes into his own as the peerless and unfailing messenger."

Most men think they look splendid in a dress suit; and most of them do.

Indulgent mothers are the ones who permit their children to annoy others.

When Untruths Become Costly

NEWSPAPERS scored a very important victory when the Canadian courts gave judgment of $25,000 damages to a Calgary publication against the Al G. Barnes circus for a "fake" publicity story.

There is thus set up the principle that newspapers which guard their reputation for printing only the truth can collect damages when they are imposed upon by untruthful agencies.

In other words the newspapers are now to have the law on their side in the ceaseless vigil to stamp out the untruths of publicity agents and others. No longer does the newspaper have to rely entirely upon its own ingenuity to detect falsehoods in copy submitted to it for publication. It now has on its side the element of fear on the part of those who might profit from the publication of falsehoods; they will be fearful that the publication might later detect the falsehood and collect damages in a legal action.

Just how far the doctrine can be extended in courts of American jurisdiction will remain for the future to develop. If it will also include the doctrine that advertisers damage the reputation of the newspaper by including in their copy false and fraudulent statements, the people will have won a substantial victory. There is good reason for such law. Newspapers are at a constant expense in guarding against untruthful advertising. They have the support of advertising clubs and better business agencies everywhere. The government is contributing its support to the war on fraudulent advertising. If it could be set up as a doctrine of law that newspapers are entitled to recover damages from those who damage the newspaper's reputation by inserting false advertising, then there would be a great forward step in the campaign.

Newspapers are continually striving for the truth. If there was a day when the newspapers were careless with the truth that day has passed. The newspaper that does not give to its readers a statement of facts—as contrasted with a statement of opinion—is not a successful publication. Readers desire the opinion of editors, provided they are on the editorial page or in the editor's column. But in the news and advertising columns they expect the facts, so they can properly and definitely form their own opinions.

Every development that aids newspapers to eliminate extravagant and untruthful statements is therefore a development to the public.—San Bernardino Sun.

Economy in Governmental Practice

THE California Taxpayers' Association, in a recent article, advocates strongly the legalization of the photographic method of recording deeds and public documents, which is now being considered in this state.

This method has been tried in a number of states with uniform success. The common system of recording documents, by manual means, is of necessity slow, ezpensive, and, because of the human ability to err, not entirely accurate.

The photographic method on the other hand, is swift, absolutely accurate (as it gives an exact reproduction of the original), permanent, fraud-proof and—perhaps most important—remarkably economical.

The recording of documents takes thousands of dollars yearly of public funds. It is by such improvements as this, consistent with science and progress, that much may be done to lessen the tax problem.

The Evil Rodeo

WHY the rodeo? It is at most a show—an attempt to reproduce the wildness of of the frontier and intentionally that life at its wildest. To do this there must be animal victims, and the wilder and more vicious these animals the better. This means that the victims must be trained in viciousness and this training continued, and with increasing cruelty else the victim is soon subdued and the sport is over. Here is the essential evil of the rodeo. To keep the creatures continually vicious, they must be viciously trained and this training (practiced mostly in private) is the charge against the rodeo that is brought by the humane society and other advocates of kindness to animals.

Tomorrow's Citizens Learn Fire Prevention

RECENTLY the fire chief of an eastern city remarked that the instruction of school children in practical methods of fire prevention was responsible for a considerable percentage of reduction in fire losses.

Throughout the entire country fire prevention campaigns are conducted by The National Board of Fire Underwriters and many other organizations every year, laying particular stress upon the instruction of school children. Millions of pieces of literature are distributed to aid in their education along these lines and the school authorities who are co-operating deserve a great deal of credit.

Instruction of the younger generation in principles of fire prevention has far-reaching results. When the children are studying the subject (and many of them manifest a keen interest) they talk about it at home, thus carrying the desired thoughts to other members of the families. When they are writing fire prevention essays or making posters, the entire family often becomes interested in what they are doing.

With the youth of the land studying fire dangers and taking an interest in the conservation of life and property, the outlook for a considerable reduction in our annual fire loss is promising. What they have learned will be retained. The citizen of tomorrow will have a far greater consciousness of the danger of fire and a scientific knowledge of how to prevent it in their homes and places of business.

Those Frightful Verbs

ENGLISH is said to be a hard language for the foreigner to learn. The verbs are particularly puzzling. The Chicago Record a few years ago told the story of a Frenchman who was endeavoring to master the intricacies of the English verb, and was having trouble with the verb, to break. The story was somewhat in this fashion:

"I begin to understand your language better," said the Frenchman, "but your verbs still trouble me."

"I saw your friend, Mrs. Murketon, just now. She tells me that she intends to break down her school earlier than usual."

"Break up her school, she must have said," I answered.

"Oh yes, I remember, break up school."

"Why does she do that?" I asked.

"Because her health is broken into."

"Broken down."

"Broken down? Ah yes. And indeed since fever has broken up in town."

"Broken out," I corrected.

"She thinks she will leave it for a few weeks."

"Will she leave her house alone?"

"No, she is afraid it will be broken—broken—how do you say that?"

"Broken into."

"Broken into. Certainly, that is what I meant to say."

"Is her son to be married soon?"

"No, the engagement is broken—broken—"

"Broken off. Ah I had not heard of that."

"She is very sorry to hear of it. Her son only broke the news down to her last week."

"He merely broke the news," I said, "no preposition at all this time."

"It is so hard to understand. That young man, her son, I mean, is a fine young man. A breaker, I believe."

"No, a broker," I replied.

Of Interest to Men Only

THE female of the species is more dazzling than the male—at least to date. But what of the future, writes Clem Whitaker of the Capitol News Bureau?

The debut of man, sartorially speaking, figures large in the list of coming events posted by California newspapers. Man, so it is alleged, is about to emerge from the haberdashery 'dark ages.' Swanky colorful a fellow of startling raiment; that's the picture as The Stockton Record sees it in an editorial entitled, "Of Interest to Men Only."

Here's how, as told by the Record: "Poor down-trodden man, practically the only one of God's male creatures who is confined to more sombre garb than his mate, has things coming his way in the matter of color at least. In addition to wearing bright feathers in his hat and rainbow striped 'undies' the staid business man may now put on the giddiest, loudest suspenders that the market affords. Lord Fashion, as represented by 200 sartorial artists gathered at the Pacific Coast Merchant Tailors Association conclave in Los Angeles, decrees that gaudy galluses will no longer be confined to Hollywood boulevardiers and high school boys. The well dressed gentleman may also get frisky with his dinner clothes. His tuxedo may be navy blue, dark gray, purple, or the conventional black, according to E. Otto, general chairman of the gathering. Otto, likewise, declares that Mr. Man must have fifteen suits, five overcoats, a single and double-breasted tuxedo and both black and white waistcoats in order to look well groomed."

Daddy Suffers, Too

by O. Lawrence Hawthorne

"When babies come," my boy observed,
"I guess the Daddy suffers too,
Because whenever Mother's ill
It makes you awful sad and blue!"
A lad of only ten short years,
And yet he senses what some day
No doubt will line his face with care
And touch his golden locks with gray.

Of course, a Daddy suffers too!
It hurts him deep when he must see
The dearest woman in the world
Approaching her Gethsemane,
And know that each heroic step
Brings more excruciating pain,
While his attempts to ease her path
Are all so impotent and vain.

For when, to him, the doctor seems
So unconcerned, and when the nurse
Seems so incompetent and slow
And so inhuman and perverse,
The agony a man endures
Cannot be measured or explained;
His anguish is intensified
Because his rage must be restrained.

Yes, Daddy suffers; and perhaps
Is frequently misunderstood—
God knows how gladly he would share
The pangs that come with motherhood.
And so, while Mother should receive
The reverence that is her due,
Let's not forget, when babies come,
Their helpless Daddy suffers too!

Increased Auto Travel.. Spreads Serious Diseas

By MAYNARD C. HARDING, M. D.
San Diego, California

Infantile paralysis, or poliomyelitis, is an epidemic disease constantly present in some part of the world. It probably has had its home in North-Eastern Europe, whence it has swept westward at intervals. For many years we have had epidemics of it at short intervals in various parts of the United States.

Due to increased travel by auto between widely separted parts of the country, now amounting to millions of people each year, this disease as well as many others is very widespread. In fact it is likely that its presence in so many places will keep down serious epidemics by immunizing the most susceptible children through having had it and recovered. Fortunately the percentage of children who are susceptible is low, and of the ones who do take it only one-fourth are left crippled.

A diligent search for an effective serum has been carried on for many years. It is generally admitted that the one specific cure is serum from the blood of a person who has recenly recovered from the disease.

The medical profession in many places is attempting to procure a store of such serum against the hour of need in their communities. It must be on hand ready for use within the first day or two if paralysis is to be prevented.

A small quantity of blood should be taken from each convalescent case. It is drawn by a hypodermic needle and is without danger to the child.

This article is written as plea for co-operation in securing this life saving blood. All parents should request the use of immune serum in their own children if the unfortunate necessity should arise.

For the first time since the regime of the Lyceum society, the pupils of the Sequoia Union High School have organized a student body. Such an organization has been desired and deemed necessary for several years past. In fact, it is now considered indispensable as a controller of student affairs in almost every high school of the state. With this in mind the pupils have organized and at a recent meeting elected officers. Gerald C. Halsey, the leader of the debating team, was unanimously chosen chairman; Miss Lucile Otto, '05, who represented the school in a debating contest several years ago, was elected to the office of vice-president in the same manner, and James V. Neuman, of '04, carried off almost every note for the office of treasurer. Miss Pauline M. Beeger obtained the clerkship of the student body by a slight plurality over Wesley Boulware, of the debating team. Miss Beeger is also secretary of the class of '04.

Trans-Atlantic Phone Call Made For Insurance

Seated at his desk in San Francisco, W. B. Brandt, insurance broker, arranged by long distance telephone with London for a $500,000 policy insuring a San Francisco office building against damage from excavation work on adjoining property. The transatlantic telephone conversation lasted 13½ minutes.

"Insurance men have been discussing this policy for weeks," Brandt explained later. "No company could be found in San Francisco that would quote rates on such a policy. At 9 o'clock in the morning, which is 5 o'clock, London time, I called E. E. Heath & Co., London representative of Lloyds, and explained the proposition. The risk was accepted by Lloyds and the rate quoted was satisfactory to my clients.

"Without the radio telephone it would have been impossible to secure the policy in time since work on the foundation was scheduled to start immediately."

Two Brothers Face Jail and Fine For Still Operation

Angelo and Louis Biglieri, brothers, and ranchers of Halfmoon Bay were sentenced to terms of one year each in jail and fines of $3,300 for violation of the federal prohibition law. The men were arrested several weeks ago by federal officers and were tried and found guilty before Federal Judge Louderback. The men were charged with operating a still on their ranch on the coastside.

A third man, Sebastian Belli, was also arrested, but was released when it was shown that he was employed by the brothers as a ranch hand and had no part in the liquor trade.

STATE FUNDS FOR SCHOOLS AID WEALTHY

Minnesota Man Says Change Needed In Tax Methods

By Lawrence Monfort

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14—(CNB)—Engaged in the futile fad of "keeping up with the Jones," California's high schools aren't fooling anyone but themselves, it appears today.

Districts backed by the largest proportions of true wealth and which consequently have the greatest possibilities of tax income are receiving greater proportional aid from the state than their "shabby-genteel" neighbors, according to Dr. L. V. Koos, of the University of Minnesota who has just concluded a preliminary survey of secondary education in the state.

Mono county, for instance, which doesn't maintain a high school has true wealth of $365,882 per average daily attendance of high school pupils, while Nevada county's wealth on the same basis is but $31,354, and the average for the entire state $84,574, Dr. Koos finds.

San Mateo county, with a high school enrolment of 2520 is credited by Dr. Koos with $46,351 in true wealth per high school pupil.

"One can readily acquiesce with the High School Principals Association committee on equalization of taxation," declares Dr. Koos, "that there is serious need of working out some type of remedial program that will achieve much more in the way of equalization of the burden of high school support than is effected by the present arrangement. In general the state gives most to those localities which are already wealthier."

Local tax rates in high school districts, he adds are at startling variance, ranging from 26 to 87 cents in the state without including bond and interest rates. More than a third of the districts now are levying from 71 cents to 75 cents, the maximum that may be levied without calling a special election.

The state's plan of school finance lacks in stimulating local endeavor, Dr. Koos found, noting the wide variance of local levies in elementary districts as well. Of the 547 elementary districts in California, local rates range from nothing at all to 75 cents per $100 of valuation.

Local Y. M. I. First Anniversary

With seventy members and four grand officers present, Redwood Council Young Men's Institute, celebrated the first anniversary of the local council's inauguration with a splendid banquet in the dining room of the Hotel Sequoia last Tuesday evening.

Coach Casanova and the members of the Redwood Council's winning football team were the honored guests of the evening. The players were introduced by Gordon Seeley, football manager.

A program of varied entertainment and inspirational talks drew the applause of all those present.

Seated at the speakers table were Rev. Father J. P. Cavanaugh, Rev. Father Wm. Falanagan, Grand President John J. Casey, First Grand Vice-president Ray Williamson, Edmund Scott, Toastmaster Wm. J. Leary, Grand Director Clifford Weyman, Grand Marshal Roy Palmer, Council Deputy, Past President Joseph Nash and President John Ryan.

August Gaynor, president of the Y. M. I. board of management, presented a large cup to Redwood Council, emblematical of the track championship of the Young Men's Institute.

County Recorder T. C. Rice has gone to Los Angeles to join his wife, who is visiting with their son, Kenneth Rice and family. Mrs. Rice left for the southern city several weeks ago by aeroplane with her son, who is a pilot of one of the passenger lines operating between Oakland and Los Angeles, and has been visiting with the young people who recently became parents of a baby girl. They will remain in Los Angeles for several days.

Legionnairs Plan District Meeting

A district meeting of the Eighth District of the American Legion will be held in San Mateo Monday evening in conjunction with the annual dinner of the San Mateo Legion Post. The meeting will be held at the San Mateo Woman's Club house, and will begin at 6:30. The cost of the dinner will be $1.50 per plate.

It is the desire of the commander of the Redwood City Post that as many as possible of the Redwood City members be present. Those intending to go are requested to notify Dr. R. C. Frazier by calling Redwood 893 or the adjutant, W. I. Clark at the Times-Gazette office.

A Letter To An Eastern Friend

Redwood City, Feb. 13, 1929.

My Dear:

From all reports I hear you are afraid to stick your nose out of the door for fear of getting "freezed." In Redwood the days have been perfect.—"But oh those cold, cold nights." tra la!

Yesterday I enjoyed a gorgeous drive over to Halfmoon Bay and up the old coast road to San Francisco.

Halfmoon is such a quaint little place, the houses for the most part, appear much weather-beaten, and I would like, for the sake of a woman's curiosity, to know their histories, for somehow I feel that many of them have a history. The place is "picturesque" and that's the choice word of my limited vocabulary to describe it. However, after all is said and done, this "quaint picturesqueness" doesn't feed the inhabitants of Halfmoon. Most of them make their living by raising artichokes—acres of them. So much for Halfmoon, except that I've heard it sad it was a good place to quench one's thirst. ??

As for the remainder of the drive over the mountains, it would take one skilled in the art of description to do it justice. My only comment is—see it for yourself—and you will never regret it—unless you should become to enrapt in the scenery and go through the fence.

Yours for "Sunny California,"

Banks Work In Many Ways

The Trust Department has been properly called the "heart of the bank." Perhaps no other unit in the modern banking institution comes closer to the hearthstones, the hopes and aspirations, in fact the whole inner life of banking customers and their kin. It is no exaggeration to say that modern trust service is one of the greatest sustaining forces of present-day society.

And that "heart of the bank" is as easy to reach as the nearest teller's window. Indeed it is not even necessary to be a depositor in order to obtain the services of the Trust Department. Its advantages and safeguards are designed as much for the protection of generations yet unborn as for the protection of those that are living today. The old notion that it is a service for the "privileged few" is no longer prevalent. There is no department in the bank that has a more universal appeal; no other department that can more definitely discount both present and future hazards that might threaten the peace and comfort of the family fireside of the cherished business of the master of the house.

In the old days those who were left behind to assume the burdens of estate management and finances all too often found themselves hopelessly entangled. On the one hand it might have been a distraught widow or son or daughter seeking to salvage a legacy from well-nigh insurmountable debt, and on the other hand an inexperienced business partner or associate trying with might and main to master the unfamiliar detail of the business enterprise left behind by the late departed, so as to save such enterprise from sinking into bankruptcy. Often too, there were certain terms interwoven into the verbiage of the Last Will and Testament which became painful inequities and injustices when the instrument was actually probated and administered. Not infrequently there was somewhere in the picture the shadow of a mental or physical incompetent to add new cares to the burdens of the bereaved.

Modern trust service has changed this gloomy picture considerably. the business of managing estates and caring for the financial welfare of inexperienced beneficiaries, minors and incompetents may be regarded as the chief function of this service. It is growing enormously throughout the land, due entirely to the satisfactory results obtained by reason of conscientious and skillfull administration and attention to detail.

Now, except for the sad transition of death, the lives of the surviving relatives may go on uninterrupted, the hearth fire may continue to cast its warm spell and the loved ones that remain may continue to plan and hope. safe in the knowledge that a humane and competent trustee is carrying on for them.

The cost of this necessary service is comparatively nominal. Highly efficient management of an estate, great or small, invariably conserves the property that the decedent hands down to his heirs whereas wasteful, unskilled and inexperienced management is frequently found when inexperienced executors are burdened with difficult and complicated estates. The Trust Department is indeed the physician of family and business finances. Its duties are to safeguard the assets of the estate for the benefit of the beneficiaries. Those duties take decided precedence over the question of what it shall receive for its services.

The bank may act as depositary or custodian of the personal property held by executors, admisitrators, trustees, or guardians so that they will be relieved of the responsibility of the safety of such property. In addition all qualified persons may confer with the bank as to the investments belonging to the estate.

The bank through its Trust Department may not only administer the estates of decedents who reside in California, but may also handle all matters relating to property owned in California by a decedent who was a resident of another state. Under these circumstances it may act as agent for other trust companies and other executors.

Under life insurance trusts, which are growing increasingly prominent, the bank may safeguard the policies of life insurance so that the wishes of the insured may be fully protected.

Trust service as practiced by most companies in California concerns itself not only with court trusts, in which the bank acts as administrator or executor, but also with living trusts and corporate trusts. Court trusts and living trusts concern very vitally the personal interests of individuals. All of the functions heretofore referred to in this article, in addition to guardianships of the estates of minors and incompetents, concern individuals solely.

Service to corporations, known as corporate trusts, include the function of acting as registrar of corporate stocks and as transfer agent. The registrar guards the public against stock over-issues and other possible abuses of the stock distribution privilege. The transfer agent directs the operation of transferring the stock from the corporation to the stockholder, first seeing that all of the legal requirements of the stock issue have been complied with.

The bank may also act as receiver or assignee in bankruptcy cases and as fiscal agent for the handling of funds belonging to corporations.

Because of the ever increasing complexity of modern business and the necessity of careful guidance in financial matters, trust departments of banks are appealing strongly to those who wish to avail themselves of this highly developed, highly efficient yet reasonable service.

WOODSIDE

The sad news was received at Folli Farm on Tuesday of the death in New York of Mrs. Arthur Rose Vincent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Bourn. With her two children she was on the way from the family estate in Ireland to visit with her parents here but was stricken with pneumonia on board ship while crossing the Atlantic. Mr. Vincent was reached by radio gram in Ireland and arrived in New York just a few hours before the death of his wife.

The Woodside Troop of Girl Scouts are presenting a varied program of dancing, songs and a short play entitled, "Just a Joke," on Friday evening, Feb. 15th, in the Woodside Hall. As this is their first public appearance, they, together with the community committe, have been working hard to make it a success. Miss Alice Phillipson, regional director of Girl Scouts, will be present to tell something of Scout Camp life for which the local troop is raising its funds. After the program, refreshments and home-made candy will be sold and there will be tables for those who may wish to play cards. So, to use the Scout mottor, "Be prepared" and come. Adults, 25 cents and for those under twelve, five cents.

The advertised demonstration by the telephone company of the new telephone switching system has been advanced from the 21st to the 15th and will be given at the Parent-Teacher headquarters at 1:30 in the afternoon. All interested are invited to attend as this is the only demonstration that will be given in Woodside.

A Valentine Party was given to the children of the neighborhood on Thursday afternoon by the Parent-Teacher Association. The hall was apropriately decorated, the children's school Valentine boxes were opened and contents distributed, refreshments were served and games played. To the children, the receipt of a goodly number of Valentines has a thrill second only to a visit from Santa Claus.

Mrs. William P. Roth's thoroughbreds from Why Woory Farm here received a large share of the prizes and ribbons at the International Horse Show held last week in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Schurman of Pasadena, who visited their home here last week made the trip between their two homes by airplane. We shall soon be week-ending in the Canadian Rockies or Yellowstone Park until the airways become too crowded for comfortable driving.

Nitwithstanding the annual cold weather for this time of year, evidences are plentiful that spring is arriving. The swelling tree buds, the blooming acacias, the red blossoms of the trillium all point to the fact.

Why Shell Horsehide
(Though Soft As Buckskin)
Outwears All Other Leathers!

IF YOU want to get longer wear and greater comfort out of work shoes, we recommend that your next pair be Wolverine Work Shoes — made of Shell Cordovan Horsehide. This leather outwears all others because it includes an inner shell found only on the horse's hips (about one-sixth of the hide). First you wear out the leather — then you wear out the shell. No wonder many say Wolverines wear two or three years!

And that's not all. Shell Horsehide as tanned by Wolverine dries soft under all weather conditions; remains scuffproof; has fifty percent greater resistance against acids; and is almost impossible to rip and tear.

We predict that after wearing one pair of Wolverine Horsehides, you'll never be satisfied with anything less in wear and comfort. Ankle-lengths to knee-highs . . . grease-filled or flexible soles . . . we've got them all — at mighty reasonable prices. Why not come in today and try on a pair of

TRAFFIC COPS TO BE KEPT IN JOBS

No Change Planned In Personnel of Traffic Forces

Traffic officers of the division of motor vehicles now holding office under contracts with San Mateo county need have no fears about the safety of their jobs if the Breed motor vehicle act (S. B. 714), creating a state-controlled highway patrol is given legislative approval.

This was the declaration this week of Alexander R. Heron, head of the state department of finance of which the division of motor vehicles is a unit and emphasized by Frank G. Snook, chief of the Motor Vehicle Divisoin.

Heron said few, if any changes are contemplated in the personnel of the present force of officers, adding that under Section 30 of the proposed act their status would be unchanged for the first year.

After the expiration of one year all members of the force receive automatically the protection of civil service regulations without examinations on ratings to be made by the chief of the division of motor vehicles.

"Actually the officers will receive a protection in their jobs they do not now and never have enjoyed," said Heron. "Under the present regulations they may be removed without trial by the chief of the division of motor vehicles. And they are constantly subjected to the risk of political upheavels in the respective counties from whence they are appointed."

The Breed act sets up the machinery for centralized control of the officers by the division of motor vehicles and the elimination of the present "double-headed" system of authority whereby supervisors recommend officers and fix their salaries and the state division appoints and supervises them.

The proposal has the endorsement of the California Development Association, California League of Municipalities, Motor Vehicle Conference of California and many other prominent bodies.

J. C. McGovern, public administrator, this week filed with the county clerk an application for letters of administration in the estate of Elizabeth Rosenheim, who died on January 25. The petition states that the value of the estate is less than $10,000.

Graham-Paige Makes Unique Time Record

In a recent hill-climbing competition in Victoria, Australia, a Graham-Paige, winner of two events, aroused as much interest through the consistency of its performance as it did through its victories. Both climbs, over a 1600-yard course, were made in exactly the same time to the fifth of a second, the Graham-Paige being clocked at 1 minute 59 4-5 seconds for each of its runs.

The test was held under the auspices of the Royal Automobile Club on Zig-Zag hill at Lilydale, the climb consisting of a series of hairpin turns on a difficult grade. The Graham-Paige won the trade stock standard event in its class, and afterward won the event open to all cars. Its feat of covering the course twice without the least variation in time was hailed as one of the most unusual demonstrations of consistent performance and skill in driving ever recorded in Australia. The car was piloted by Walter Whitbourn in both events.

Menlo Park Man Sued for Divorce

James G. Williams of Menlo Park is charged with extreme cruelty in a complaint filed here this week by Clara Williams, his wife, who is represented in the action by Frank B. Cain. The Williams were married in 1917 at Yale, Oklahoma. They have one child, a daughter, aged 7 years, whose custody is asked by the mother.

Laundry Burglar Sent to Prison

James Walker, who was [illegible] in San Francisco several weeks ago in conection with the burglary of the United States Laundry office at Beresford, and who later confessed to having committed the burglary, was this week sentenced to San Quinten by Judge George H. Buck. Walker was sentenced to an indeterminate sentence in the state prison. A plea by his attorney that he be examined by the insanity commission was denied by Judge Buck.

STROPPING IS ESSENTIAL TO THE PERFECT SHAVE

a Million barbers can't be WRONG!

Stropping a razor blade can't be foolish—surely a super-keen blade must be preferable

YOU must know that after the first shave the cutting edge of the finest blade that can be made is a row of tiny jagged hooks—until it is stropped. Stropping smooths out and re-aligns these minute points. That's why barbers everywhere always strop before each shave. They've done it for 2,000 years.

And that's why shavers everywhere are eagerly adopting the famous new Valet AutoStrop Razor. Its automatic self-stropping device guarantees a perfect blade for each morning's shave. No trouble. A flip of the thumb—a few swift strokes—and the edge is as keen as can be. No need to remove blade to strop or clean it.

What's more, 21 years of research and the expenditure of a million dollars have made this famous razor the most perfect shaving device ever offered.

Recently introduced, the Million Dollar Valet AutoStrop Razor is already a nation-wide sensation. Even if you thought that the original Valet AutoStrop Razor could not be improved, get one of the new Million Dollar models today. Try it with the new Valetite-processed blades. Judge its betterments for yourself.

You'll say this Million Dollar Razor is worth all it cost to make—yet it costs you so little that you can't afford to be without it.

LAWMAKERS SPLIT OVER MANY BILLS

Legislature Faces Stormy Session On Opening Day

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14—(CNB)—The legislative malestrom swirling with nearly two thousand bills, the most important of which relate to taxation, state trade mark, county school unit, state departmental reorganization, it appears today, is rapidly eddying toward the opening of the Legislature next Monday.

Among the battles to end the death penalty or to increase the number of offenses for which capital punishment is the penalty is dividing the legislators into two opposing forces.

A variety of bills ranging from the Fellom-Quigley bills to abolish capital punishment altogether, through the West bill to substitute life imprisonment without parole, to the Woolwine act calling for the death penalty for robbery and the Arnold measure extending capital punishment to kidnapping, will confront the senators and assmblymen.

On the eve of the reconvening of the Legislature, the farm bloc appears split over the question of a State Trade Mark for agricultural products, with the main proposal sponsored by Assemblyman Van Bernard, and an alternative measure brought forward by Senator Henry Carter.

The assembling legislature will be confronted with the ex-servicemen's program, including a $20,000,000 bond issue for a continuation of the farm and home loan plan for veterans and the creation of a State Department of Veterans and Military Affairs, both of which were incorporated in Governor Young's recommendations. In advising the creation of an Emergency Council to take charge in a military fashion in times of disaster, the Legionnaires, however, have gone beyond the administration program and may have to battle for their bills.

The administration reorganization plans also include the creation of a Department of Investment Relations, a Department of Penology, and a Department of Vocational Standard, as well as bills to transfer the Division of Motor Vehicles to the Department of Public Works, the Civil Service Commission to the Department of Finance, and the State Agricultural Society, which is responsible for the annual State Fair to the same department.

Only three school measures of controversial interest are now awaiting the arrival of the legislators, the County School Unit bill, fathered by the California Taxpayers Association and opposed by Governor Young and the County School Superintendents Association; the 24-hour school plan sponsored by the State Commission on Problem Children; and the creation of a lay commission of nine to investigate the state school system and report an alternative reorganization plan to take the place of Amendment No. 6, defeated last November.

The old problem of the organization of a state constabulary arises again, the legislators being given a choice through the Breed bill which creates it merely as a traffic department, while the Keaton bill confers full powers upon state police to apprehend all types of criminals.

The Legislature promises to open with the usual "wet and dry" cocktail, since the "wets" will celebrate, legislatively speaking, with the Hornblower search and seizure and the Rochester repeal of the Wright Act and substitution of the Volstead Act. While the "dries" threaten through the Jones bill to make a jail offense obligatory upon the second conviction of the Wright Act.

A new criminal code with as its high lights the halting of the corrupt bail bond practices, preventing false insanity pleas and simplifying and speeding up the processes of penal justice, faces the legislators as the result of the State Crime Commission report. Likewise, the Legislature is called upon now to create a new prison exclusively for women and pass new commitment laws for women offenders at the behest of the Women's Prison Site Commission.

The first action demanded of the Legislature will be the passage of the four percent income tax upon banks and other corporatons and the three mill intangible tax in accordance with the constitutional amendment authorized by the people so that the tax will be effective by the 1st Monday in March.

National Guard To Be Trained On Three Fields

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14—(CNB)—The California National Guard, 6100 men strong, will not go into annual summer traning camp as a unit this year, but will occupy the San Luis Obispo, Capitola and Fort McArthur areas by units over a period ranging from June 15 to August 18.

So Adjutant General R. E. Mittelstaedt announced today, explaining that the San Luis Obispo site improvements being made over a three-year period are not sufficiently far advanced to permit mobilization of the Guard at one time.

The newly organized Redwood Y. M. I. basketball team will play the U. C. College of Pharmacy five at the Sequoia gymn this evening at 8:00 p. m.

$55 Monthly Average 1928 Tax Per Family

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 14—(CNB)—The average California family antes up about $55 per month, 12 months of the year for the support of state, county and municipal governments, to meet the staggering total of $640,000,000 needed annually for their support.

That's according to State Controller Ray L. Riley, and does not include federal income taxes or other national levies.

"The mind of man no longer can comprehend the tremendous outlay for government," Riley declared, "unless it is expressed in individual dollars rather than in mass millions."

"There is no moral to my diagnosis of California's cost of government," said the controller, "except that the intelligent citizen should get down to cases and transpose state expenditures into individual tax bills. Most government enterprises are good enterprises in the broad sense. It is simply a question of "when to stop?"

that the new Nash "400" is the only car of all the new cars that offers all these important features as standard equipment.. at no extra cost

THE new Nash "400" not only gives you all the important 1929 refinements listed above, but gives them to you without one single cent of extra cost. All motor cars have two prices—the factory (f. o. b.) price, and the delivered price. If the delivered price includes the extras, charged for at retail prices, you'll find your car costing a lot more than you anticipate.

Some dealers (not Nash dealers) charge as much as $50 or $60 for bumpers alone. On the new Nash "400" you'll find every necessary accessory . . . hydraulic shock absorbers . . . bumpers, front and rear . . . even tire locks . . . installed at the factory . . . included in the factory price . . . at no extra cost. That means a very much lower price, delivered, fully equipped. The Nash "400" leads the world in motor car value!

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Six hundred girls from all parts of the United States and from several foreign countries gathered at Mills College to register for the spring semester, which opened recently. Of the total registration for the new term about 30 girls are entering the college for the first time.

One hangar has been completed and another wil soon be constructed at Porterville's new airport, just south of the city on the Bakersfield highway. Ground for the runways is being leveled and work rushed in preparation for daily flying with a new American Eagle plane which arrived recently from Los Angeles.

That Battery E, 143d Field Artillery, C. N. G., is to have a new armory in Livermore is the announcement made this week by Capt. L. E. Wright. Provision for the new structure, says Wright, is included in the ten year building plan laid out by Governor Young. The building is to be erected in 1933 and will cost $35,000.

With a view to standardizing rodeo entertainments in all of Northern America, representatives of cowboy and cowgirl contests in eight western states gathered in Salinas recently and organized the Rodeo Association of America. Delegates came from California, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado, Wyoming Montana and New Mexico.

Plans have been completed for a fifth building on the new campus of the University of California at Westwood Hills, Assistant Comptroller Robert Underhill announces. This building, which is to house the teachers' college of the University, will be square feet of floor space, and cost three stories in height, contain 57,000 approximately $450,000.

Dedication of the Tracy airport will cover a period of three days, April 26, 27 and 28. The field is under three-year lease to James McDermott Post, American Legion. Plans are being arranged for air races, flying stunts, parachute jumping and other features. It is expected that planes representing the army, navy and the marine corps will perform the opening day.

An effort to effect the return of 100 acres of land in San Francisco now held by the Federal government to the city of San Francisco and the heirs of General John C. Fremont was instituted recently by Congresswoman Florence P. Kahn. Mrs. Kahn introduced a bill in the House providing for relinquishment of the property. The land in question was seized by the Government as a war measure in 1863. Part of it is now occupied by Fort Mason. The portion claimed by the city is sought for park purposes.

The various departments of the city government of San Francisco have experienced their first complete audit in many years. Confidential reports disclose only one real shortage in any department, that being in the sheriff's office where from $7,000 to $10,000 is said to be missing. Most of this sum has been repaid. A $1,000 shortage in the Board of Health Department was repaid at once. The grand jury promises recommendations for drastic changes in the bookkeeping systems of the future.

With petitions bearing hundreds of names, some urging repeal of the Kern County anti-slot machine ordinance and others protesting against such repeal, the board of supervisors has decided to postpone indefinitely action on the matter. Several days ago, in response to signed appeals to repeal, the board instructed the district attorney to prepare a repeal measure, following a vote of 3 to 2, with Supervisors Stanley Abel and Perry Brite opposing, and Supervisors W. R. Woollomes, John O. Hart and Richard E. Ashe favoring taking the law off the books. Those voting for repeal contend that the ordinance was daily being violated in Bakersfield and every other municipality, and observed only in the remote country districts.

Grey bones and skulls that once were incorporated in nimble little three-toed horses and thundering mastodons have been found by the University of California paleontologists along the Canadian river in northern Texas. These bones and more valuable finds which R. A. Stirton, curator of the vertebrate collection at the University Museum, expects to excavate there, date back 7,500,000 years to the Pliocene Age. Why these fossil beds should be located in this region was explained by Professor W. D. Matthew, curator of the University Museum. "The animals came down to the rivers to drink," he reasoned. "Here they were either caught in the mud, or attacked by carnivorous animals. Perhaps both. In most cases they were torn to pieces and their separate bones distributed about in the river mud. The finding of complete skeletons undistrubed by carnivorous beasts, is rare and such specimens are extremely valuable."

Establishment of 12½ cents a pound for salmon May 1 to June 15 as their price to the wholesalers has been proposed by the Sacramento River Fishermen's Union. The wholesale fish dealers of San Francisco are now said to be considering the proposal. The present method is to fix the price of fish weekly.

California's quota for the Citizen Military Training Camps this year will be 1,555. This figure was given in a schedule announced at Ninth Corps Area headquarters at the Presidio, San Francisco, by Major Elmer C. Desobry.

Revocation of 134 paroles during the last thirteen months, six of the cases involving men originally convicted of homicide in California, was reported to Governor Young by Ed H. Whyte, State parole officer.

Clarence Saunders, who organized the Piggly Wiggly chain grocery stores, is to open fifty stores in Los Angeles, Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley, Cal., under direction of a new company, Clarence Saunders Pacific Stores, Inc., it was learned. The company plans to open between 400 and 500 self-service stores in the three coast states in the next two years.

After soaring to an altitude of more than 200 feet and gliding nearly a quarter of a mile, a motorless glider club completed the first successful glider flight in Central California. The glider was piloted by Dale Drake of Reedley.

Visitors to Mount Whitney, highest point in the United States, may soon make the trip in two hours, instead of an auto and pack-train journey of five days. This was the prospect when it was announced that Templeton Meadow, located near the base of the mountain, is in excellent condition as a landing field. Porterville business interests are planning the formation of an aero club to exploit this new air route.

A "dry land ship," the Golden Bear, was commissioned last week at the University of California student observatory. The apparatus, a reproduction in steel of the bridge and bow of a ship, mounted on a concrete base, and "steered" to point in any direction by a wheel, is designed to teach the practical compensation of magnetic compasses on board sea-going vessels. The Golden Bear was built by the Navy at Mare Island.

Witness the case of Harrison H. Randolph, 24-year-old Tranquility youth, who will be hanged soon at San Quentin Prison for the brutal murder of Mrs. Pearl Hunnicut, middle-aged Bakersfield matron, last November. Randolph, through Warden Court Smith of San Quentin has written to Deputy Sheriff Harry Colins, who arrested him for his crime, inviting Collins to witness his hanging. Colins said he will accept the invitation.

General Mills, Inc., of Minneapolis, announced its consolidation with the Sperry Flour Company, a $13,000,000 concern with properties in California, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah. Under terms of the merger, subject to approval of Sperry Flour Company stockholders at a meeting February 20th, General Mills, Inc., will redeem Sperry bonds and preferred stock and holders of Sperry common stock will receive preferred and common stock of General Mills.

Transcontinental air-rail passenger service was inaugurated and carried out on schedule when an eight passenger monoplane of the Standard Air Line Company hopped off from Los Angeles for El Paso, Tex., and another arrived from the border city recently. Connections were made with Kansas City, St. Louis and New Orleans trains with a saving of 18 hours over rail time between Los Angeles and El Paso. Stops were made at Phoenix, Tucson and Douglas, Arizona.

Tests of a new type of transportation—a gas-electric car—has been tried out on the Southern Pacific's peninsula lines, with a view to its adoption as a supplement to steam train service. The new car seats fifty-five passengers and is capable of hauling two standard day coaches. The motive equipment consists of two gas engines developing 600 horsepower. Each engine drives an electric generator, which supplies current to four traction motors geared to the car axles.

The effect of fires and reforestation on irrigation and hydro-electric power were discussed before the meeting of the California forest research advisory committee at the Whitcomb Hotel, San Francisco, recently. Major R. Y. Stuart, chief of the United States forest service, addressed the meeting on the importance of research work preliminary to intelligent attack of any large problem. Particular attention was given to the Kennett and Iron Canyon areas. Kennett was cited as a typical example where 85,000 acres had been entirely denuded by smelter fumes and an additional 100,000 acres was subject annually to forest fires.

In a concerted drive to induce the Federal Government to establish an air base in the San Francisco area, mayors, city managers, supervisors, and Chamber of Commerce heads of all cities in the Bay district meet in San Francisco. The conference, called by Mayor James Rolph, Jr., is expected to result in the calling of a hearing at which the Government will consider the availability of this section as a base. Possibility that the $5,000,000 naval air base, provided for in a bill recommended by the House Naval Affairs Committee a few days ago, may come here, was suggested as one of the objects of the conference. Congress is expected to pass the bill in the near future, at the request of Secretary of the Navy Curits D. Wilbur.

Ocean liners, express trains, automobiles, and airplanes will supply summer classrooms for college students, and Europe will constitute a university campus, when three travel courses announced by the University of Southern California hold session from June until September. A sketching expedition, restricted to men, is especialy planned for students of architecture. With an itinerary curriculum covering continental motor expeditions to places of literary, artistic and historical interest, a travel course in painting and sculpture for feminine students is also announced. Elaborate as well as elastic plans have been made that students might visit every point of interest in Europe.

Healthy increase in lumber shipments from Humboldt bay are shown in the records compiled by H. F. McGrath, deputy collector of customs. Redwood shipments to foreign and non-contiguous points totaled 3,659,900 feet in January, 1929, an increase of 100,000 feet over the mark for 1928.

The University of California seismograph recorded an earthquake lasting for more than an hour and a half, a reading recently revealed. University officials said the earthquake's greatest intensity was approximately 3700 miles southwest of here, or south of the Hawaiian Islands.

Natural gas, from the Button Willow fields in Kern County, will be delivered through the Coast Counties Gas Company system in Contra Costa County to consumers in Martinez, Pinole, Rodeo, Crockett, Concord, Pittsburg and Antioch probably some time in October, was the prediction of Miles W. Gahan, district manager for the company. "Natural gas will be delivered in Watsonville some time in July or early August, and it then rests entirely with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company how quickly the natural gas supply will be brought on to Martinez and Contra Costa County."

POULTRY

BROOD CHICKS BY ELECTRICITY

Easier to Run Than Those Heated by Coal or Oil.

"Electric brooders are excellent for brooding chicks when the weather is mild. In New York state they may usually be used satisfactorily after April 15, or at any time in a room that does not depend entirely on the brooder for its heat," says Prof. L. E. Weaver of the poultry department at Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

In answer to the question—can chicks be satisfactorily and economically brooded with electricity?—Professor Weaver says, "the answer is yes, but with reservations."

"Electric brooders are far more simple to run than are coal or oil brooders. When once regulated there is almost no more work or worry with them. But they must be in a room that is at least moderately warm, for the electric brooder confines the heat almost entirely to the space under it. It does not warm the room as is the case with coal or oil brooders. The chicks will not do well if the room is cold, and the cost of heating just the brooder alone gets too high even with a low rate for the current under such conditions.

"In purchasing an electric brooder one should be sure that it is provided with a positive heat regulator, that it is well insulated to prevent unnecessary loss of heat, and that provision is made for ample ventilation.

"Electric brooders are of two types, those with a curtain and those without. The curtain type requires less current but is apt to be poorly ventilated or not ventilated at all. The curtainless type with a good ventilating arrangement is probably the most desirable," says Professor Weaver.

When to Market Ducks to Make Most Money

Green ducks at eight weeks of age should weigh 9 pounds to the pair, and at ten weeks ought to reach 10 to 11 pounds. They command best prices about the first of May, and from then on until July the price gradually drops. From July 1 to September prices remain unchanged, but by September to November they are up again.

The general laying season starts about February and continues until the last of August. The first eggs of the season are rarely fertile. Fertility and vitality are the keynotes of success in duck culture.

One way to make money out of ducks is to be ready with a good supply at the opening of the season, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. Another important item is the value of the manure, that of duck ranking second to hog for growing vegetables.

The trade for ducks is largely found in the restaurants and mountain and shore resorts, where they are served in quarters—the carcass being cut into four pieces. Consequently, a duck weighing 4 or 5 pounds, served in that way, will command just as much money as one weighing 2 pounds more.

In all large cities, where there is a large Jewish population, live ducks are in demand. In Chinese sections there is also a heavy call for this favorite fowl.

Poultry Facts

Lameness is one of the first symptoms of tuberculosis in poultry.

Plan on sufficient brooding space and equipment, all you have room for. Figure how many chicks you can brood and then write several hatcheries and decide where you want to order, and then order early.

There are six steps in raising healthy chicks from hatching to maturity. They are clean chicks, clean houses, clean litter, clean feed, clean management and clean ground or close confinement.

It is necessary to have the brooder large enough—and it is better to have it too large than to take chances on overcrowding.

Milk has been found to be the best single source of animal protein for laying hens, it being easily digested and rich in protein and minerals.

If you are sending away for baby chicks have the brooder all ready for them, warm and comfortable, and clean. They get chilled if they have to wait while you "make up the bed."

Duck eggs are successfully hatched in incubators, but geese eggs are not. Geese will lay about three dozen eggs per year.

The highest egg production has been secured by using milk with some form of meat, such as fresh meat, tankage, or meat scraps.

Some farmers feel that the birds will gather sufficient insects while on the range to make up for the lack of protein in the ration, but tests do not bear out this belief.

A good incubator and proper hovers well cared for when not in use will last for years and be a good paying investment.

Lack of sanitation, due to neglect, is often a cause for trouble. Unless the litter is changed frequently it will become moist during cold weather.

Mites and lice breed under the filth in the roosting house in cold weather, so clean up things and keep them clean if you would avoid much fighting of these pests later on.

Walstad Sets New Ski Record

Halvor Walstad of Racine, Wis., established a new record jump in the Twenty-third Annual Ski meet of the Norge Ski club at Cary, Ill. He is seen soaring through the air for 169 feet, which sets a new mark.

Golf Illustrated Sees Great Year for Sport

The new year, William Henry Beers, editor of Golf Illustrated and recognized golf authority said, holds promise of being the greatest in the history of golf in every department of the game.

"The outstanding development of the year," he said, "will be a closer and more sincere co-operation on the part of the player with the greens committee for the production of finer turf. Better courses will be sought in 1929."

He attributes this to the desire of the players for uniform courses. Speaking of the increase in interest in the game he called attention to the number of college youths and girls now on the southern golf courses.

"If some big hearted golfer with money and time wants to do a really fine thing during 1929," he continued, "he can give health and happiness to a million men by finding some means of establishing public courses in hundreds of localities that desire them, but local red tape and laws hamper progress.

"How to circumvent politics and policies," he said, "is the public golf problem. If this problem could be solved in 1929 a million players could absorb the health giving ultra-violet rays and have real enjoyment at the same time."

Big Factor in Cage

Elmer Tenhopen, co-captain with Johnny Doyle, who will be one of the main factors in the title hopes of Wisconsin's cagers this season. He stands 6 feet 4 inches from the floor and can drop them in from anywhere.

This Youngster Prefers Homers to White House

In a certain school the scholars were asked to write their compositions upon the "Principal Aim in Life," referring to their individual aims or abstract aims.

One of the compositions, somewhat brief, but containing meat, read as follows:

"The principal aim in life is to learn how to bat home runs like Babe Ruth."

Why shall we say that the boy is losing interest in baseball when one of him can so succinctly put forth such sound philosophy. The lad took the subject seriously. His teacher took his composition seriously, and while he may have smiled to himself when he read that composition, he went to the youngster and encouraged him and congratulated him for his sincerity of purpose.

Ogden Runs Daily

What John McGraw said about pitchers being ruined for the afternoon by running the bases, doesn't apply to Jack Ogden, pitcher with the Browns. Ogden is in the pink of condition at all times because he trains by doing some running every day.

Ogden is a coach and physical director at Swarthmore Prep school. He was a star athlete at Swarthmore college, and he practices what he preaches to his boys. He is very fast on his feet.

The proposal of baseball makers to put out a ball that will not have to be rubbed in the dirt to prepare it for pitching will meet with the approval of pitchers. The fans will like it, too, because it will save time and speed up the game.

Queer Sample of Star Play—Hunch

Hugh Critz says: "Great fielders follow hunches without being able to explain exactly why. My explanation of a hunch is this: I think it's a species of instantaneous reasoning that happens so quickly that the steps by which you arrive at your conclusion elude your memory. Out of the air, as it were, like a whizzing baseball, you grab an idea and act upon it without an instant's hesitation. I would call that but a superior kind of quick thinking."

FREDDIE MAGUIRE GOES TO BOSTON

To Fill Place Made Vacant by Hornsby's Exit.

Freddie Maguire's big league career has been a brief but eventful one. He came from Toledo last spring to play second base for the Cubs alongside a second year shortstop, no light assignment for a rookie when it is considered that the Cubs had pennant aspirations. They called him the weak link in the Cub pennant chain last spring and they hoped that the hard hitting outfield would carry him and his futile bat along to the championship.

Well, Maguire hit only .277 but he was one of the finest fielding second basemen in the business and he had a part in many batting rallies that the famous outfield did not help along. This first year rookie batted in 38 runs and scored 69 himself, not so grand, and yet not so terrible.

They do say that a great keystone man is essential to a championship team, and if this is true Maguire must be quite a boy, for he played 140 games for the Cubs at second base last season, and these same Cubs were in the pennant fight up to the last ten days of play. Surely it was not Maguire who was the weak link in the Cubs pennant chain. A game boy in the pinches, both at the bat and in the field. He hit within nine points of Cuyler and he accounted for more runs than many outfielders of standing in his league. And as for his play at second it was brilliant at times and it was steady when the baseball pressure was more than 200 pounds to the square inch.

But the fates of the game moved the clever and promising Maguire as a pawn in the deal that brought the redoubtable Hornsby to the Cub machine, and so Freddie will play for the Braves in Boston next season. He must fill Hornsby's shoes when the Braves go on the warpath in 1929. And he will probably fill them—in the field, for he bids fair to be one of the great second basemen of his day, but no man can fill in for Hornsby and his .400 hitting average with the bat. This Maguire is no spring chicken, even if he has just finished his first major league season, for he is twenty-eight years old.

Plenty of Tall Timber for Husky Frosh Crew

Of 150 freshmen turning out for crew at the University of Washington, 81 are 6 feet or more tall. And 38 of them are 6 feet 3 inches or more.

Freshman Coach Tom Bolles is inclined to worry about the height of his material, not because his aspiring oarsmen lack power, rhythm or stamina, but because some of them carry their heads so high up in the sky that they might make the boat topheavy.

Three of the youths, Karl Reese, James Donahue and Bob Hutchinson, are 6 feet 7 inches tall, while Ed Johnson is only an inch shorter.

Withal, Bolles expects to have one of the most powerful "baby" shells ever to row for the Huskies.

Herb Pennock Working on His Sore Pitching Arm

Herb Pennock, the Yankees' southpaw pitching ace, believes his arm has completely recovered from the attack of neuritis that laid him low at the end of last season, but he is taking no chances on having it come back. Calling at the Yanks' office, Pennock reported that he is in fine shape and sure he will be ready for his regular turn when the baseball season comes around. As an aid to the cure he plans to go to Florida ahead of the rest of the team, and try the effects of the sun on his arm.

To Move Keystone Star

The St. Louis Cardinals, in line with the other clubs, plan to move their star second baseman, Frankie Frisch, over to third base in order to make room at second for the youngster, Carey Selph, from Houston.

The Browns have Frank O'Rourke, who played third last season, in readiness for work at second base in the event the youngster, Eddie Grimes from Tulsa, makes good at third. Manager Howley knows pretty well what O'Rourke can do on the infield.

Fifty-Fifty for Dumbness.

He—A man isn't so dumb that he thinks he can get a No. 4 foot into a No. 2 shoe.

She—Maybe not, but he'll marry a woman confident he is going to boss her.

A Fine Comeback

Husband—Didn't you throw your hat in the ring for presidency of your club?

Wife (sarcastically)—I couldn't, dear; it was out of style.

WATER ALREADY IN

Motorist (beginner)—"Can't you put a little water in the car, dear?" Wife (who hasn't begun yet)—"Oh, I knew there had to be water and I've put a large bottle full under the seat."

Seemed Appropriate

Mrs. Newed—George, dear, your "den" is all ready—but don't you think there ought to be a motto? What would you suggest?

And "George, dear" revealed himself for a perfect brute by suggesting, "Don't shoot your husband! He's doing the best he can!"

Not Always

Wife (sadly)—You don't love me any more.

Husband—Most certainly I do.

She—Then why do you rush off to the club?

He—My dear, absence makes the heart grow fonder, you know.

Proof Enough

"What makes you think he is crazy?"

"He sold his garage and is going to open up a harness shop."

WRONG RENOVATION

Maggie—"He thinks their marriage needs renovation." Jennie—"Well, she has just left for Nevada to Re no-vate it."

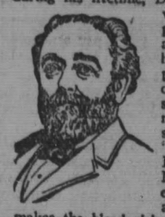
Just Plain

Lady in Department Store—May I see some trunks, please?

Luggage Salesman—Do you prefer the plain ones, madam, or shall I show you some of our new metal trimmed, indestructible, camp or running board type?

Lady—Just plain ones, I guess. My husband wants to wear them swimming.

Why He Succeeded



Honored politically and professionally, during his lifetime, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears here, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for many years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a stomach alterative which makes the blood richer. It clears the skin, beautifies it; pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. This Discovery, or "G M D", of Dr. Pierce's puts you in fine condition. All dealers have it in liquid or tablets.

Send 10 cents for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free medical advice.

Not Included

Mother was telling of some place she had taken the older boy when he was quite small. Three-year-old Billy piped up, "Was I there, too, mother?" He was told that he was not, as he wasn't even born.

His little eyes filled with tears, and his lips puckered as he said: "That's just it, you never take me any place."

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

New Author—Could you use my story if I were to boil it down?

Hard-boiled Editor—No chance. Boil down a gallon of water to a pint and it would still be water, wouldn't it?

Youth—Why do you believe in long engagements?

Henpeck—The longer the engagement the shorter the marriage.

WHAT DR. CALDWELL LEARNED IN 47 YEARS PRACTICE

A physician watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the system and is not habit forming. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for anybody's system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly.

Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to the nearest druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Church Building Campaign

The Building Campaign of the Menlo Park Presbyterian Church is rapidly gaining momentum under the leadership of Dr. Marion Humphreys of Omaha, Nebraska, who is a member of the Building Department of the Presbyterian Church at large.

The Presbyterian Church building at Menlo is a landmark, having been built about the year 1874. The church was organized with thirteen members on November 30, 1873 by the Reverend Dr. Stewart of Gilroy. H. P. Coon was the first official in the church serving as ruling elder for several years. So fas as is known all the original thirteen members have passed on. Mrs. Geraldine Elizabeth Frisbee, who now resides at San Mateo, became a member of the church in 1875, and was active in its affairs for many years. She is probably the only living member who was conected with the church at that early time.

An old seating plan has been found showing the pew holders back in the 80s and 90s. Among them are Leland Stanford, A. H. McDonald, Chas. Holbrook, Capt. Goodall, Timothy Hopkins, General H. Dimond, Edgard Mills, Mrs. Frisbie, Wm. Chapell, D. Sloan, etc, names of men and women who have made history in this community.

The present building campaign does not contemplate dispensing with this old church immediately, but the building of a Sunday School unit near it to house a growing Sunday school and take care of the increasing social activities of a modern church. The type of building selected is a beautiful Spanish type which will be a credit to the fine centrally localted property on which it will be erected. Santa Cruz avenue is becoming a prominent highway and it is desired that nothing but the best type of modern church shall be erected on the thoroughfare.

On Monday night fifty men of the community gathered at a banquet at the church and heard the plans presented. On Wednesday over sixty women gathered for the same purpose. Dr. Humphreys addressed both meetings and much enthusiasm was expressed for the new enterprise. Next Sunday, desgnated by Dr. Humphreys as "Victory Sunday," will bring the campaign to a climax. Dr. Humphreys will preach at eleven in the morning and at seven thirty in the evening.

City Council in Regular Session

The city council held its regular meeting Wednesday evening. All members were present.

The communication from the California League of Municipalities, asking that suitable resolutions be adopted endorsing the Jones bill, referring to sanitary districts, was referred to the city attorney to draw up the necessary resolution to be adopted at the next meeting.

The report of the chief of police for the month ending January 31 was read by Councilman Blake. It showed that the sum of $1064.50 had been collected from all sources. Twenty-two arrests were made.

Walker reported that Cambridge street and Yale street had been mproved and were in good condition. The cost of the work was $298. Mr. Morton found fault with the work and did not mince his words in telling the council about it.

On motion of Blake, seconded by Walker, College Way, Florence Lane, Pine street, Cherry, Stanford Boulevard, Medway, and Live Oak streets in Stanford Park were ordered improved and repaired, Weeden and Dale voting no on the motion, both holding that the work should be done permanetly and the temporary improvements contemplated was only a waste of money.

On moton of Blake, seconded by Walker, the sum of $200 was appropriated to the police contingent fund. Weeden wanted to know what disposition was being made with the money, whereupon Chief Furman said that the narcotic vice was being fought all over the county, and the money was to be used here to root out the evil. The motion was carried, Weeden and Dale voting no.

The clerk was also allotted $25 for a contingent fund to pay all small acounts as they came into the office.

The claim for gas and oil for the city motorcycle was deferred in order that the council may investigate the claim.

No further business appearing the council adjourned to Feb. 26.
